

The diagram illustrates the connection between piano keys and musical notation. At the top, a section of a piano keyboard is shown with white keys labeled G, A, B, C, D, E, F, and G. Above each white key is a small '5' and a vertical line. Below the keyboard, a box labeled 'line notes' spans the width of the white keys. Below this, a musical staff with a treble clef shows notes G, A, B, C, D, E, F, and G on the lines. Below the staff, a box labeled 'space notes' spans the width of the white keys. Vertical dashed lines connect the piano keys to the line notes, the line notes to the musical staff, and the musical staff to the space notes.
